Hugh Campbell was born either in 1760 or 1761 in Argyleshire, Scotland. As a young man he came to America as a British soldier during the Revolutionary War, joining the 38th Regiment of Foot on 17 June 1780. In 1781, at Flushing, he was promoted to Corporal, at which rank he was discharged from the British army in October of 1783. During the course of his service, his regiment was present at the battles of Bunker Hill, Brooklyn, New York and Newport as well as a number of other, smaller conflicts. After the war a number of soldiers of the 38th were transported to Nova Scotia, where Hugh was granted 200 acres of land in Shelburne county. After a few years he went back to the United States where he married Sarah Soverill. They settled briefly in Newark, New Jersey where their two eldest children were born. In 1796, he with his family moved to Canada, settling in the township of Storrington near Kingston.

Acquiring additional land in what is now Inverary, Hugh and his sons established a sawmill on a stream near Collins Lake. Here they made shingles, scantling and lumber for flooring. Sarah and the girls produced woven materials of wool and linen which they sold and traded to other settlers in the area.

His great-grandson, William H. Campbell, continues the narrative:

“The father, Hugh Campbell, was a stern, conscientious Presbyterian and brought his family up in that faith. The Methodist preachers were very energetic in introducing Methodism into Canada when this family was young, and upon leaving home to make their way in the world they were warned “to beware them Methody folk for they are verra, verra bad folk,” but strange to say, nearly all of the sons became very prominent in the Methodist body.

My great grandfather continued to reside near Kingston until he was an aged man. His son Robert, in the meantime, had taken up residence in the Township of Markham near Richmond Hill. In a short time Robert’s father and mother also came there to reside. After a while the mother returned to Kingston to visit some of her sons who were living on the old homestead. She took sick, died and was buried there. The father continued to live with Robert for some time until he passed away. I think in 1836, and was buried in Richmond Hill Cemetery where a marble slab marks his grave.”

Hugh Campbell founded the village of Inverary, 12 miles northeast of Kingston, Ontario, Canada. It was named after his birthplace in Scotland.

Research: Legend has it that Hugh had a brother, James, and a sister, Polly, who came out to Canada to join him.

(Quoted from the Obituary of John Campbell, Canada Christian Advocate, 7 March 1877)

Father Campbell was one of the oldest and most respected residents of Brooklin. He was the son of a British soldier who served in the American Revolution, and was born in Newark, N.J., in 1791. When he was two years old his parents removed to Canada and settled near Cataraqui, now Kingston. In 1830 he was elected to represent Frontenac in parliament. In 1832 he removed to Whitby Township, and took an active part with the pioneers in clearing up the then wilderness, in improving Whitby harbor, and in opening up roads leading to the interior, and by establishing mills in various localities. In 1839, in company with Mr. Daniel S. Way, he laid out the village of Brooklin, and built a flourishing mill and store, and there carried out business extensively till the advancement of old age induced him to retire into private life. While thus active in promoting industrial enterprises, he was no less mindful of the moral and spiritual welfare of the people. From early manhood he was an unswerving advocate of temperance, and a promoter of the principle of total abstinence, long before temperance organizations were known in Canada. In letting the contract for the erection of the first mill in Brooklin he stipulated that no intoxicating liquor should be used on the premises, either in the raising or completion of the building.
In early life he was converted to God and united with the M.E. Church. He was licensed an exhorter as early as 1827, and in 1832 received local preacher’s licence, afterward elected to deacon’s orders, in which relation he stood to the church at the time of his death. As a preacher he was earnest, faithful and useful. He was truly loyal to the church of his choice, and very liberal in the support of her institutions; and while as a society, we deeply feel our loss, we know that with him death is infinite gain. It is well with our father.

Through the past few years he was greatly afflicted by sickness in his family, and death of loved ones, yet you would always meet in father Campbell a bright, cheerful and happy Christian. It has been my privilege to visit him frequently, and often has my heart been cheered and encouraged as I would hear him, after more than 50 years of experience speak of the all-sufficiency of Divine grace and his glorious prospect of immortality and eternal life. For the last months he seemed to dwell continually in the very land of Beulah. The call, though it came suddenly, found him waiting. A few weeks before, when called to part with a much beloved grandchild, he said, “A few days, and I will meet Bolva in her bright home with the angels.” On the evening of the 22nd day of December, he walked up to a store in the village, apparently in his usual health and in a few moments his lifeless form was borne away and he had gone to dwell in the bright house on high. He leaves an aged widow, five sons and one daughter to mourn their loss. May they all meet father in the “sweet by and by”.

The funeral, said to be the largest ever witnessed in Brooklin, was attended by the writer, assisted by Revs. Meyers, Wilson, (C.M.) and Beer, (B.C.). We laid his body to rest in the Grove Side Cemetery, in sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection to eternal life. “Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace.”

As a child, Hiram’s family moved to the Whitby area in Ontario, Canada. After his marriage, after living for some time in Whitby Township near Brooklin, the family moved to Blyth, arriving on December 14, 1870. Then on February 17, 1871, they moved to a farm on the 12th concession of Hullet Township in Huron County.

When moving from Brooklin to Blyth, Hiram’s father, John Campbell, and Hiram’s son, William H., drove a team and sleigh carrying a loaded wagon, taking six days, arriving in Blyth on the evening of December 24. After living there for six years, Hiram moved his family back to Blyth in October of 1876. The following August he moved to the Riverdale farm on the Maitland River in East Wawanosh Township, near the village of Auburn, Ontario. The farm was still owned by his great-grandson, Kenneth Campbell, in 1960.

Norma remembers her grandfather as a “little man with a beard and moustache.” He would sit in a rocking chair and sing “There is a land that is fairer than day.” When Norma was about 8 years old she and her sister Ada would walk across the fields of East Wawanosh two miles to their grandfather’s farm on a Saturday afternoon and go home with their parents when they came for Sunday dinner. had a straw mattress and a feather bed. The bed was too high for the little girls to get in, “so grandfather would take us and throw us and we’d come down on that feather mattress!”16

Hiram and Emmeline both attended the Westfield Methodist Church for many years and were buried in nearby Westfield Cemetery.66

She was an orphan from New York state. Norma Woods referred to her as “Lavonia” and called her a “darling.” She wore a long, black dress, a white apron, and a little cap. Norma especially remembered the peppermints she had in her pocket.16

James had no children.\(^{66}\) He was quite interested in his family history. He had traced it back to President Madison. He was quite family oriented.\(^{16}\)

He taught for some time in Westfield, Ontario, before getting his medical degree and moving to Sebewaing, Michigan, where he established his practice. He had a lot of land in northern Michigan which he later rented out for farming. In 1905, he moved to St. Louis in central Michigan where he remained until his death. In later years he took up farming as an avocation and, in 1932 oil was discovered on one of his properties and several oil wells were established. Ed Hoover helped him manage his farms during his retirement.\(^{604}\)

When he died they closed everything down in the town of St. Louis, Michigan during the hour of his funeral in his honor.\(^{16}\)

“The Toothless Ones - Isn’t it funny?”
  Lillian and Bertie in Canada

Aunt Bertie with Ralph and Alan Hix and Mac McCormack
  1940
93. Sarah LILLIAN Campbell. Born 7 Dec 1861 in Whitby, Ontario, Canada. Died 11 Jan 1946 in Welland, Ontario, Canada. Buried in Oak Grove, St. Louis, Michigan (James Campbell plot). (Research: Birth date 6, 7 (Ralph Hix) or 8 Dec 1861 or 1862. Norma Woods gives it as 8 Dec 1861 or 1862.)

Henry and Robert Hoover were identical twins (Henry was right handed, and Robert was left handed.) When Barbara Woods was six years old, she went to Canada to visit. Uncle Robert drove over to see them the first night they were there. She came up to her mother and said, “Who is that man that looks like Grandpa and isn’t?” Robert and Henry loved playing jokes on their mother, pretending to be each other. She didn’t like it.

Henry and Lillian met in Westfield, Ontario, where Henry’s family went to cut down trees to build a log cabin. They lived within two miles of each other and sang in the same church choir. (Lillian couldn’t sing but Henry could.)

Shortly after their marriage, Henry moved to Edmonton, Alberta for a summer but didn’t like it there and moved back to near Blyth, Ontario. Around 1900, Henry was having a hard time on a rather poor farm that his father had bought for him at the time of his marriage. He was paying his father back for it. Lillian’s Uncle James had a lot of land in northern Michigan, that he rented out for farming. He needed a good manager for his farms, so he asked Henry to come work for him. The family moved to Pigeon, Michigan, where the youngest two children were born. Henry stayed in Michigan for several years, and then moved back to Canada. Starting in 1906 he farmed for three years in Rosenroll, Alberta, about forty miles south east of Edmonton, but had two crops hailed out and, with a bumper crop in the third year, he sold out and moved back to Michigan, this time to a farm near Wheeler, and then to a farm near St. Louis, Michigan. He brought his family back to Canada in 1915 to a farm near Brussels, about 12 miles from the place of his birth in Ontario. He purchased a “very nice” farm, which he later gave to his son, Ed, when he retired.

In 1923 he and Lillian came to California to live with three of his daughters. After a year and a half they purchased a house in Blyth, Ontario and moved back to Canada, where they lived until they moved in with their youngest daughter, Marjorie. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter, Norma Woods, in South Pasadena, California, on Dec 18, 1936. (See Some Descendants of Henry and Mary Hoover of Ontario, Canada for more information on the descendants of Lillian Campbell Hoover.)

Research: Marriage date questionable: 6 Dec (Ralph Hix), 10 Dec (Norma Woods), 8 Dec 1886 (Colin Crozier).

They had the following children:

196 i. Ada May Hoover
197 ii. Norma Luella Hoover
198 iii. Della Hoover
199 iv. Vera Emmaline Hoover

95. Chester Campbell.

96. Frank Campbell.

97. Albert Campbell.

Actress with the assumed name of Flo Irwin. Her career started in Buffalo at 17 and lasted for many years - at times on her own and at times with her more famous sister. She had a married daughter in Chicago at the time of her death.

She married Thomas F. Grady, 1887. Occupation New York State Senator.

Thomas was Addie’s second husband.

Actress with the stage name of May Irwin. Growing up, May and her sister Addie sang in the church choir. After their father’s death, they turned to the theater as a source of income. They debuted at the Theatre Comique in Rochester, New York and later their mother took them to Buffalo in February of 1876 where they sang duets in the Adelphi Theater for $6.00 per week. It was then that they assumed the name of Irwin. They appeared at Tony Pastor’s Theater in Detroit in 1877 and worked there for the next six years. The Irwin Sisters were quite popular and traveled extensively about the Eastern and Southern United States on the vaudeville stage. They were especially well known as “coon-shouters” - singing Negro melodies such as “Don’t You Hear Dem bells?”

In 1883 May went “legit” when she joined the acting company of Augustin Daly, dissolving the sister act, and she toured for a time in New York, London, France, Germany and Italy. “When the Gay Nineties started, this broad-bosomed, ragtime singer-comedienne from Whitby, Ontario was ‘undeniably the greatest farce artist in America.’” She was 25 and was earning $2,500 a week. “A reviewer of the time said of her, “She is as round, as innocent looking -- when her mood is not reckless -- as pink and white and as blue-eyed as ever... Her fund of personal humor is prodigious.”

In 1896 she was the first to consummate an on-screen kiss as part of the play “The Widow Jones.” Thomas Edison filmed the scene as a clip, “The Kiss” - a total of 50 feet of film. Early film viewers were reportedly scandalized by the film, although the uproar was probably not widespread since films did not have the wide distribution they have today, being shown on penny arcade machines rather than in theaters. The clip became the most famous early film clip in the history of the cinema (and is, perhaps, what May is best remembered for.)

In 1907 she made her New York vaudeville debut at the Orpheum Theater. Having gained some weight (Variety uncharitably said that her entrance looked more like a sister act) she lamented the fact that she no longer had a visible waistline. Her songs and comedy sketches of the time were very popular - especially “After the Ball”, “Ta-ra-ra-Boom-Der-e”, and “The Bully”, which she introduced.

She was well known to three U. S. Presidents. When she gave Woodrow Wilson a solo performance “to give him a good laugh and take his mind off war worries”, he offered her “the portfolio of Secretary of Laughter.”
An astute businesswoman, she purchased an entire block in New York city (Lexington Avenue between 54th and 55th) early in her career, which she was able to sell in the late 1930’s for $1,000,000. She also purchased an island on the St. Lawrence River (in the Thousand Island district) on which she built a three-story red granite mansion. It was here that she frequently entertained her Broadway friends and that Irving Berlin wrote “Alexander’s Ragtime Band” in 1911. Her association with the Thousand Islands area also led to her visit to nearby Clayton, NY where she met George and Sophia LaLonde. Mrs. LaLonde had created a salad dressing which particularly impressed May, who carried the receipt back to New York and introduced it to George C. Boldt, owner of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel and his famous matre d’, Oscar Tschirky, who put it on the hotel’s menu where it became an immediate hit. It was May who named it, “Thousand Island Dressing.”

By 1922 she had retired from the stage to a luxurious existence in New York City. Years afterward Eddie Darling asked her to appear for one of his old-timers’ bills at the New York Palace. She turned him down saying, “Heavens, I wouldn’t make any business for you. They don’t want old people.” Sometime later, when his headliner, Emma Calve temperamentally and very suddenly refused to appear (claiming to have lost her voice), Eddie sought out May in desperation to fill in. She replied, “I don’t know what I’ll do but I’ll be there.” As she walked on the stage with a huge, beaming smile, she said, “I’m here as a fill-in. I haven’t one thing I can do. So I’ll just tell you three whoppers. They’re not mine; I heard them at Lulu McConnell’s yesterday…” The jokes went over big and she followed up with her signature song, “The Bully,” and brought down the house. When Eddie tried to pay her Calve’s wages for the performance she refused to take the money - she had done it as a favor to a friend in need.
